

The Tokyo Station Hotel Joins Historic Hotels Worldwide® Preserving More Than 110 Years of Heritage While Looking to the Future

Tokyo, Japan October 28, 2026 – The Tokyo Station Hotel, the iconic luxury hotel located within the Tokyo Station Marunouchi Building, has been inducted into Historic Hotels Worldwide®, a prestigious international program dedicated to celebrating and promoting the world's most distinguished historic hotels.

Established in 2004 by the National Trust for Historic Preservation (USA), Historic Hotels Worldwide® recognizes historic hotels outside the United States that have successfully preserved their architectural and cultural heritage while continuing to provide exceptional hospitality. Membership is extended only to hotels that meet rigorous standards, including a history of at least 75 years and outstanding historical, architectural, and cultural significance.

Since opening its doors in 1915, The Tokyo Station Hotel has welcomed generations of distinguished guests from around the world. Located within the Tokyo Station Marunouchi Building—designated as an Important Cultural Property of Japan—the hotel has witnessed more than a century of Japanese history.

Following extensive restoration of the Station Building, which faithfully restored the landmark to its original appearance after wartime damage, The Tokyo Station Hotel reopened in 2012 after a complete renovation. While carefully preserving its historic character, the hotel was reimagined as a contemporary luxury destination offering timeless elegance, modern comfort, and personalized hospitality. As a hotel housed within a living cultural heritage site, The Tokyo Station Hotel remains committed to preserving history by keeping it vibrant and relevant for future generations.

The hotel's induction into Historic Hotels Worldwide® recognizes not only the architectural significance of the Station Building, but also The Tokyo Station Hotel's long-standing commitment to cultural preservation, its remarkable history alongside one of Japan's most iconic landmarks, and its distinctive spirit of Japanese hospitality.

Through the global network of Historic Hotels Worldwide®, The Tokyo Station Hotel looks forward to sharing the rich history of Tokyo Station, the hotel's unique heritage, and the beauty of Japanese culture with travelers from around the world, while continuing to offer unforgettable experiences where history and contemporary luxury come together.

About The Tokyo Station Hotel

The Tokyo Station Hotel opened in Tokyo Station in 1915. Its imposing architecture and state-of-the-art facilities for the period attracted visitors from far and wide. This year, as the hotel celebrates its 110th anniversary, it continues to honor its rich heritage while welcoming guests from around the world with timeless hospitality. The Hotel temporarily closed in 2006 to accommodate the preservation and restoration of the entire Tokyo Station Marunouchi Building. After a complete remodeling that took nearly six and a half years, the hotel reopened in 2012. The hotel's 150 guestrooms and suites deftly balance the refined elegance of classic European décor with modern comfort and technology. Its unique ten restaurants and bars, fitness and spa facilities, and the state-of-art meeting rooms charmingly retained the vestige of the station building's rich heritage and significance. Classic Luxury - a timeless experience cherished across eras. The hotel located inside the important cultural property blends historic charm with modern comfort. Unbeatable location adjacent to Tokyo Station, which is an ideal hub for exploring the city and to various destinations across the country. The hotel is also concerning about future with sustainability; all rooms are automatically subject to the carbon offset program.
